THE TRUSTEE'S MEETING

Brand Boulevard Awards Are Being Paid by City Treasurer

CHICKEN ORDINANCE

As Amended Comes up For Final Passage Thursday Night The Gaffs Have Been Mostly Removed

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Thursday evening, all members being present except Irving H. Oliver, who attended a demonstration exhibition of the Knox and Seagrave fire engines at Bakersfield.

Mr. Wm. S. Hirsch, of the Gorman Fire Apparatus Company, was present before the Board and made arrangements for the Board as a whole to meet him Saturday afternoon, October 4th, at which time a test of the Seagrave engine will be made at some point in the city of Los Angeles.

All local technicalities having been complied with, the city treasurer was instructed to commence paying off the awards of damages in the Brand boulevard matter. A record has been made in this matter, inasmuch as there is less than $100 outstanding on the assessment made, and this amount is due from unknown owners. This is considered by those familiar with such matters as being an exceptional record.

The amended chicken ordinance was presented for the first reading. The ordinance as now amended provides that no chickens or domestic animals shall be kept within 25 feet of any window or any bedroom or door of any residence in the city, and hogs shall not be kept within 300 feet of any such residence. Only two horses, two mules, two burros, two goats, one cow, and only a total of four animals, and not more than 50 chickens or any fowls; 25 rabbits or hares may be kept on a lot containing not less than 75,000 square feet, or 50x100 feet, without first obtaining a permit from the Board of Trustees, this permit to be secured by making application for same on prescribed blanks, which will be secured from the City Clerk. These permits are to be issued for twelve months, but may be revoked or suspended at any time. Chickens are not to be permitted to run on the premises of neighboring property owners. A violation of this ordinance shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment of not more than 50 days, or of both fine and imprisonment.

This ordinance will come up for final passage at the next meeting.

Mr. E. H. Weston, representing the photographers, appeared before the Board in behalf of the ordinance desired by the photographers of the valley to protect them against traveling "coupon solicitors." Mr. Weston had secured copies of similar ordinances in effect in other cities, and these were given to City Attorney Baker for consideration.

The weed resolution ordered prepared at the last meeting was presented by city attorney and passed.

The milk ordinance regulating dairies and the sale of milk was read for the second time, and will come up for final passage at the next meeting of the Board.

City Engineer Lynch is expected back before the next meeting, and immediately upon his arrival he will make the necessary estimate for the proposed water bond election, and thereupon a resolution calling the election will be prepared and passed. It is the desire of the Board of Trustees to get everything in their power to get the water situation straightened out before we have another hot spell.

The tax levy for the current year for State, county and city is $2.70, as against $2.86 for last year. Of this amount, $1.25 is for the city, 70c for the school and 75c for the State and county. The valuations have not been increased.

The time for paying dog licenses having expired, a vigorous campaign against unlicensed canines is threatened, and someone is liable to come up minus a pet cur some day.

SOME FLIES.

Last spring Redlands, Cal., employed an official flycatcher. He recently made a report to the city trustees for the summer's work. From 700 traps in the business and residential sections he claims to have caught upwards of 42,000,000 flies, 18 barrels being required to carry away the insects.

WE ALL HELP PAY THIS

LOSSES BY FIRES IN THE UNITED STATES.

A daily paper publishes the fact that the losses by fires in the United States every business day of the year for property is a million dollars, that three lives are thus lost daily and seventeen injured in the same period.

A million dollars every business day for a year will build over ninety thousand up-to-date five or six-room bungalows, and include the payment for the fifty-foot lot with each house, enough to house over four hundred and fifty thousand people, of five to a household.

The loss of life of 900 yearly, of 5,100 yearly injured, the time lost by these injured ones, the expense for medical care, and the loss to business by these fires are not figured in this statement, but such a total would add tremendously to the loss in finances, so that it would be a staggering sum.

If the yearly loss of these fires was applied to building such bungalows in an unbroken line, they would stretch for a distance of over eight hundred and fifty-two miles with no cross streets intervening, and if these were added, of sixty feet wide, it would increase the distance to nearly a thousand miles.

If such a holocaust happened at one time in one place and burned up those bungalows, it would be a sad historical fact for all ages to come and the world would stand aghast.

Yet there are thousands of people in every State who do not desire or do not believe in fire insurance; some believe they are immune, till their time comes, or some think they cannot spare the small premium required.—J. E. H.

WELL WORTH THINKING ABOUT?

The plan of keeping boys and girls decent by teaching them sex hygiene in the schools is likely to be about as effective as keeping a mule from kicking people by exhibiting to it the injuries inflicted by the kicks.

It is not knowledge that deters from vice—it is character. If parents will themselves live clean, upright lives as examples to their children and rear the children to do likewise no teaching of sex hygiene in schools will be necessary—and if unnecessary it is certainly a difficult and an immodest part of any school curriculum. We have always taken the greatest interest in school matters because we believe the school to be, next to the home, the place where character is built. We give the school credit for much, but we cannot honestly advocate it as a deterrent of any special form of vice.—Huntington Beach News.

AN AWFUL SHOCK.

A certain Tropic father, a respected citizen who ever has in mind the straight, narrow path, has been confined to his bed for several days, suffering from an extreme nervous shock.

It chanced that he opened by mistake a letter addressed to his son, a young man who is endeavoring to win fame, unknown to his father, as a novelist. The letter referred to ran thus:

"Dear Robert—You must really show more caution in constructing your plots, or the gov'nor will be sure to discover that the dead body of Anabel in the cellar, and then the shameful secret will be out. Don't give the old man such a big dose of strychnine; and why not put the mother in a madhouse straight away? Your forgery is far too small a sum; make it five or six thousand. Leave the rest of your sweet family circle to me. I will finish them off for you.—Yours, Jacko."

WEDDING BELLS.

Surrounded by their relatives and friends and amid the perfume and beauty of myriads of pink roses and trailing greenery, Miss Elise Vance and Mr. Richard Tiffany plighted their vows that united them in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Tiffany, on Tropic avenue.

Mrs. Fred Spear, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march, the bride performing the same courtesy for Mrs. Spear when she and Mr. Spear were married last June. Misses Jessie and Dorothy Dutton, cousins of the bride, wearing dainty white frocks, assisted, Miss Jessie as flower girl and Miss Dorothy as ringbearer. Rev. J. H. Henry of the Methodist Episcopal Church pronounced the marriage ceremony.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white embroidered voile and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The only ornament she wore was the handsome gold La Valliere with diamond pendant that had been presented to her by the Knights of Pythias, Visor Lodge, and Pythian Sisters of Lallah Temple of Tropic. Mrs. Tiffany is the musician of the Pythian Sisters and an officer in N. P. Banks Woman's Relief Corps of Tropic, and is the most popular of the many recent brides of Tropic.

EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

One of Tropic's citizens, Mrs. Rose Hughes Leech, of 118 West Palmer, gained much deserved fame during the recent forest fires. Forest Supervisor R. H. Charlton was busily engaged in directing the fire fighters at the front and during these strenuous days Mrs. Leech was in charge of the office at Los Angeles which is charged with protecting the 2,000,000 acres in the Los Angeles reserve. Mrs. Leech directed the movements of rangers throughout the reserve by long-distance telephone. All calls for additional men to join the fire fighters were issued by her and she supervised the purchase of thousands of pounds of foodstuffs and materials for the use of the men in the field.

While the fires were raging Mrs. Leech remained at her office practically day and night.

SOMETHING ABOUT MISTAKES.

When a plumber makes a mistake he charges twice for it.

When a lawyer makes a mistake it's just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a carpenter makes a mistake it's just what he expected, because the chances are 10 to 1 that he never learned his business.

When an electrician makes a mistake he blames it on induction, because nobody knows what that is.

When a doctor makes a mistake he buries it.

When a judge makes a mistake it becomes the law of the land.

When a preacher makes a mistake nobody knows the difference.

When a newspaperman makes a mistake he advertises it and everyone knows it.

Evan-Crist Company, designers, builders and contractors, inaugurate an advertising campaign in this issue that tends to show that they are not afraid of the future of Tropic. They will make a specialty of building homes on easy payments. The fact that they give all contracts their personal attention assures customers of a square deal.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Study, Athletics and Society Happenings

The opening meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association will be held at the Tropic Grammar School building Friday, October 3, at 3:15 p. m.

Mothers of the eighth grade pupils will be the hostesses for the afternoon. Besides music and a social hour there will be a discussion of the topic, "School Industrial Credit for Home Industrial Work."

A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all those interested in school affairs.

The Girls' Club, known as The Lucky 13, gave a dance in the K. of P. Hall at Glendale last Saturday evening, in which the young people had a very enjoyable time.

The Lucky 13 Club is composed of thirteen girls from the High School class of 1913, and although they are out of school they still wish to have their dances.

The inter-class basketball series has been postponed until the first of October, setting each date back one. The reason for the postponement is on account of some difficulty that arose over the qualifications necessary for the different ones to compete. Then there is some talk among the students of prohibiting those who have won their letters in basketball from competing. The reason for this is to give the lower classes more chance for the championship.

A new man has been secured to take charge of the gymnasium work for the high school, Mr. E. N. Ehmeke of Tropic. Mr. Ehmeke is a graduate of Brown University, where he was captain of the track team. He was also there at the time when Christy Mathewson was coaching Brown's baseball team, so he will have charge of the track and baseball teams, while Mr. Ferguson will have the basketball.

A Student Body meeting was held Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing as to whether or not the students who won their "Gs" in basketball should be allowed to enter interclass basketball this year. A motion was carried to the effect that all students having won the letter from the particular sport in which the letter was won. It was explained if one was awarded a "G" for services on the baseball team, he would not be excluded from interclass basketball, or if won in basketball, it would not effect his interclass baseball, and if a year elapses since he won his letter, it does not keep him out of that particular branch of athletics.

Numerous speeches were delivered by the students, and one by Mr. Farris, a Glendale merchant, who presented a splendid loving cup to the class that wins the most interclass series throughout the year. A vote of appreciation was given Mr. Farris.

The Associated Girls' Society of the High School held a meeting for the election of officers last Tuesday. Those elected were: Miss Alice McCoy, president; Miss Dorothy Hobbs, vice-president. The A. G. S. is a society composed of the girls of the high school for the purpose of bringing together the girls and getting acquainted.

The interclass basketball series started Monday, the first game being between the Sophomores and Freshmen. The following are the dates for the series: Oct. 1, Seniors and Sophomores; Oct. 3, Juniors and Freshmen; Oct. 6, Sophomores and Juniors; Oct. 8, Seniors and Freshmen; Oct. 10, Juniors and Seniors. It has been the custom in the past to run off this interclass series, for it brings to light material which would otherwise not show up. The last game of the series, which is between the Juniors and Seniors, will be the main one, as the upper classmen have the best teams, both being well matched.

Mr. Ferguson, professor of Mathematics and Science, will be the coach in athletics in Mr. Gossett's place this year. Although the fellows are sorry to lose Mr. Gossett, yet Mr. Ferguson is well liked and has had considerable experience in coaching. Mr. Ferguson is from the Sacramento high school, where he turned out a basketball team that cleaned up everything they played.

WHO SAID FASHION SHOW?

Every body went to it and just rubbered, for nobody was looking where they were going.

Did somebody find your "corn" at the Fashion Show?

Don't it beat you? With the cost of living going up, you would naturally think the women would help bring it down, but it seems that the less they wear the more it costs.

Everybody went and walked on their own feet to the Fashion Show, and some people had the kindness to walk on other people's feet.

Why is it that when a man takes his wife to a Fashion Show that while she is looking at a $2,000 dress or a $50 hat he is looking askance at a 15c shaving brush? Please answer!

Did you notice some of those old-styled costumes? There was enough cloth in some of them to make at least a dozen dresses of the 1913 model.

The slit skirt proved to be the downfall of one young lady. A "cop" noticed that her leg was very unshapely, and on investigation found a revolver in her stocking.

Not Authorized to Protect Private Forests.

Sept. 24, 1913.

Editor Sentinel:

Dear Sir—During the recent period of drouth and high winds when disastrous forest and brush fires were prevalent throughout California, many demands for assistance outside of the National Forests were made on the office of the United States Forest Service in San Francisco by corporations and citizens whose property was threatened.

If, through your courtesy, the public could be informed of the position of the Federal Forest Service on such appeals the favor would be sincerely appreciated.

The President has set aside 19 National Forests in California, and Congress has appropriated certain funds for their protection and development. The Forest Service, charged with this work, is not authorized to spend money (or the time of its officers, which is the same thing) for the protection of private forests. In some cases the Service has done so, but has been where the danger to National Forests has been emanate.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Martin, who have been spending the summer in Terre Haute, returned Tuesday morning and expect to make this city their permanent home from now on.

Why Starch?

(This, then, is a talk on Baking Powder.)

—baking powder is mixed with flour in order that, when water is added, a non-poisonous gas will form "bubbles" in the dough, the heat will set the bubble walls, the gas will pass out of the bubble—and lo! a light cake or biscuit.

—undoubtedly the BEST "Baking Powder" in the world is soda and sour milk, but we can't always get the sour milk, so we use some other acid to liberate the carbonic acid gas from the soda. Cream of tartar will do it; so will alum; so will bone phosphate, but cream of tartar, the pure crystallized acid from the grape, has been found the most satisfactory harmless acid for that purpose.

—starch? Oh, yes, that doesn't belong there at all. It is simply added to cut down the cost of manufacture.

What a difference cutting a few weeds makes in the looks of the city! But let us keep the work up until we do a good job.

Jerome appears to be the only lawyer who got what can be considered steady employment out of the Thaw case.

Of the two men, Thaw and Jerome, Jerome is the more dangerous of the two. Thaw is the product of a warped parentage and licentious associates; a weakling. Jerome is intelligent, unscrupulous, vindictive and prostitutes the law to the venting of his own personal spite. Such a persecution as Thaw has been subjected to does not alone injure Thaw, but injures all, inasmuch as it brings the law into disrepute and engenders a feeling of rebellion against any system that can be so perverted.

All this white slavery tommy-rot is absolutely disgusting. There is not one hundredth part of the assertions founded on facts. These self-constituted guardians would have us believe the majority of men are ravaging wolves, running through the world seeking whom they may debauch, and would make our girls out regular little idiots.

The latest exhibition of maudlin asininity is a notice being circulated by some organization with the avowed intention of "saving" girls. This notice is headed "Warning to Girls," and says that under no circumstances should a girl speak to a stranger on the street, railroad station, or on the train. No matter how bad a girl may be lost, she must never inquire the way of a stranger. And if a woman should faint or require assistance, under no circumstances must she receive such assistance. Neither should a girl accept a glass of water from a stranger, nor any attentions from strangers, under any circumstances. Nor must a girl ever go to a town, even for one night, without beforehand securing safe lodging.

Such a warning is an insult to the intelligence of the American girl, and it is prompted by no desire except to meddle in something that they know nothing of. It is an actual fact, proven not once but thousands of times, that a girl can travel alone throughout the length and breadth of this country and receive nothing but courtesy and respect at all times. Thousands of girls make journeys of hundreds and thousands of miles, and have to depend upon strangers wholly for information, and there is not one time in a thousand that a girl receives anything but respect. Surely fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

POOR POSTAL FACILITIES.

The Glendale News is complaining of the poor mail service that Glendale receives, and states that a letter mailed in Glendale for Casa Verdugo, a distance of a mile and practically within the city of Glendale, requires from twelve to twenty-four hours to reach its destination, having first to go into Los Angeles and then be repouched and sent out to Casa Verdugo.

Tropico has the same complaint. Tropico business men get a letter from San Francisco as quick as they can one from Glendale. Then, again, it is a common occurrence for mail to be put in the Tropico office, say, on Thursday, and not be delivered until Saturday. As the Glendale News truly says, they had better mail service during the days of Benjamin Franklin than this. There is no question but what something is wrong in the system. Someone is to blame. Who is it? The local postal officials say that they are doing everything in their power to give prompt service, but we certainly are not receiving it. It is a general belief that the trouble is with the Los Angeles office. If this be the case, then steps should be taken to remedy the difficulty and improve the service.

HE IS RIGHT.

Senator Works has come out squarely for forcible intervention in Mexico, if nothing else can bring peace to that distracted country.

Senator Works is right. Too long has this country submitted to conditions in Mexico that are a disgrace to civilization. It is all right for a big country to be lenient, but there is such a thing as carrying the leniency too far, and it is the practically unanimous opinion of everyone conversant with conditions in Mexico that we have been too lenient with those responsible for existent conditions in Mexico.

While there may be a question as to our right to interfere with their internal affairs, yet there can be no question but what we, as well as any other country, have a right to protect the lives and property of our citizens. This we have not done. It is all well enough for a certain class of people to say that our people had no business in Mexico; that they went there of their own accord, and must take the consequences, whatever such consequences may be.

Such a position is untenable, and is not consistent with the accepted ideas of the present age. You might as well say that if a man went over to a neighbor's house and was robbed and murdered that nothing should be done, because the man went to the neighbor's house of his own free will and because he did he should suffer the consequences. One contention is just as reasonable and logical as the other.

Senator Works is right. If such a position had been assumed by the American government at the beginning all this trouble would have been prevented, millions of dollars' worth of property would have been protected and hundreds of lives saved. But the worst of it all is that Americans and all foreigners will suffer for many years to come because of the weak and mistaken leniency exercised to a class of people of whom ninety per cent do not know the meaning of the word "leniency."

May other senators and officials have the courage to express their honest convictions and to say to Mexico that our people must and shall be protected.

POLITICS IN OFF YEARS.

It used to be that there was such a thing as hav- Politics, nationally, or state, or municipally, are an ever-present problem. Mark Sullivan, an editorial writer for Colliers and a keen observer of things political, says:

For one who has watched the events in Washington since the beginning of the present administration, the currency bill is of minor interest compared to those movements, still slightly below the surface, but very clear to a close observer, which are slowly shaping the stage for important and dramatic events during the next year or eighteen months. The currency bill will pass. This fact is so well known that it gives freer rein to the emotions and acts of individuals and factions which presage a break-up of the present Democratic solidarity. Before this country settles down again to a simple and comfortable alignment of two opposing parties, there are going to be some years of turbulent commotion. The break-up in the Democratic party is not likely to come as it did in the Republican party, a quick break into two factions. The Democratic readjustment will be more complicated than that. A certain amount of the restlessness, now apparent among the Democrats, is of course the rebelliousness of men whose natural affiliations are with the old corrupt "invisible government" of big business. These men have so far concealed their feelings because their political shrewdness teaches them it has been no weather for their stripe of politics. More of the Democrats who are chafing under Wilson's stern leadership are men of a native hostility to restraint. They represent the insurgent spirit which is so clearly kin to the times. When the Democratic break-up comes, it will be based chiefly on honest differences of opinion with regard to the great issues, especially the trust issue, which the party now must handle. All this, of course, is not necessarily a prediction of personal disaster to Wilson. Indeed, one of the safely predictable things is that he will be the center of one of the great crystallizations which will arise after the turmoil is over.

It is not merely that a break-up of the Democratic solidarity is coming. No person with any historical perspective can become familiar with the clumsy and complicated quality of the present machinery of government and observe its incapacity to meet present needs without realizing that a fundamental change in the form of government is an incident of the near future in America. A few years ago, when anybody criticized the form of government, the complaint commonly took the form of the slogan, "Abolish the Senate." With the political regeneration that has come over the country during the last eight years, and especially because of the direct election of Senators, the Senate has become responsive to the wishes of the people and is no longer a barrier to the expression in legislation of popular movements. Today, of the two, it is the House that should be abolished. There have been 435 members of the Lower House in Washington for six months continuously. During that six months they gave less than ten days to actual debate on the tariff and only four days to debate on the currency—the only two important measures that have been passed during the special session. Certainly it is safe to say that not one-sixth of the time of the Lower House is given to public business. All this is not the fault of any one individual in the House nor of the House itself. It is a necessary outcome of a climax and antiquated system. Moreover, there can be no question that the personnel of the House has become lower than formerly. This is partly because of the increase in its size to 435, and partly because the clumsiness of the system permits little or no opportunity for able men to make a career for themselves. Every year increases the quantity of public affairs with which the National Government must deal. To meet this increasing need there must be greater mobility and simplicity of the Government machinery. It will probably come through a constitutional convention in the not distant future. Thoughtful people in Washington know this, but there is a timidity about saying it lest it shock the conservative. It is much better to say it and let the country become familiar with the idea.

In the Happy Land of Erin

Cork, Ireland.

This morning we had our first experience in a "jaunting car." This is not part of a train or anything like a motor car, but is something very individual. This conveyance is drawn by a single horse, runs on two wheels and still looks very different from a cart or hansom cab. The driver sits high on a box in the middle in front and then there are two seats, for two, three or four passengers, one on each side back to back at a lower level. To these we climbed, seated ourselves sideways and were now ready for a journey from Cork to Blarney Castle. As the car jogs along you have a mild sensation of the motion from a side saddle ride on a merry-go-round horse, but it was not tiring and after the novelty wore off we decided it was a very good way to travel when you were out to see what was around you. We drove from the hotel down St. Patrick street, the principal one in Cork, and passed by a statue of Father Mathew, the apostle of temperance, and then across the River Lee. In this part of the city we found the Shandon church, made famous by the "Shandon Bells," and we went in and watched the keeper while he played the tunes, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "The Harp that Once Thro' Tara's Halls" and "Annie Laurie" by pulling the bell ropes. The melodies were certainly very sweet.

Our driver, who was acting as guide, soon proved very talkative and was overflowing with Irish wit. His brogue was slight enough so that we could generally understand him if we knew about what he was talking. When we passed through the tenement district we were told that you would have to tie hands and feet of the people we saw if you tried to wash them, and they looked as though they had a prejudice against soap and water. As we passed the police station we were informed that "That was where they put the men who come home sober and won't fight."

As soon as we landed in Ireland

we felt a change of environment from England. Here there is not the dignity and reserve of the latter, but a cheerful, friendly spirit and everyone so carefree. The children along the roadside waved their hands and would sing out a good-morning as we passed. Our attention was called to the doors of the houses. Each opening seemed to have a door and a half. The whole door was generally wide open, but the half door from the ground up was closed, and this was to keep the children out and the chickens in.

We were now coming to the outskirts of the city. We passed a large Irish linen factory, and then soon a chemical factory, where, we were told, they made things that will kill or cure, mostly kill. Now as we found ourselves in the country there were patches of pasture land and others of grain ready to be harvested or where it had been cut and bound. We were asked if we knew what the large stone was for, there in the middle of the pasture. Upon expressing our ignorance we were told that when the first lamp had

RECORDER'S COURT.

Ed Hilderbrandt of Watts was sentenced to six months imprisonment in the county jail and placed on probation with the understanding that he report at least once a month to Judge Melrose.

The charge against young Hilderbrandt was stealing two sweaters from the automobile of J. J. Kelley. In coming out from Los Angeles recently Mr. Kelley picked up young Hilderbrandt and another boy and gave them a ride in his automobile, and when they departed they took the sweaters with them, but from the evidence it seems that the young Hilderbrandt boy was the leader, and no charge was made against the other boy.

According to the United States statistics, there were in this country in 1907, 87,178,958 people and 72,534,000 cattle; in 1913 the same authority says there are 96,766,573 people and only 56,527,000 cattle. Wonder if we will have to stop raising people until the cattle catch up?

been invented and put up a man had a bite in the middle of his back which he could not reach with his hand, and he was made very happy by rubbing up against this lamppost. This worked so wonderfully that he exclaimed, "The Lord bless the Duke of Argyle," and set about to place a stone pillar in each pasture, and they are called "scratching posts" for the cattle.

Do you want a good player piano at a small price? The AUTOPIANO listed here is a mahogany case, plays 88-note music, and can be had at $10.00 per month. The WEBER cannot be told from a new one at $150 more. The LUDWIG at $245 and the PRICE & TEEPLE at $215 are really big values.

That HARDMAN at $415 sells regularly at $510, has walnut case and is a snap.

That MATHUSHEK at $195 is surely a bargain. Better ask to see it today—full size, plain walnut case, good tone.

And so on—the entire list speaks for itself, but you must see these used pianos to appreciate the low prices on the tags.

Every week several sagacious buyers go home happy—why not investigate yourself?

By resolution it was decided to establish a sinking fund, and that 10 per cent. of all receipts should go into this sinking fund until further ordered. DIES ON PLEASURE TRIP

Widespread sympathy attended the passing of Mr. John Atcheson of Denver among the many Tropico friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. Phillips and family of Laurel street, which occurred the latter part of last week at a Los Angeles hospital. Mr. Atcheson contemplated passing the winter in Tropico as the guest of his daughter and family, Mrs. J. Phillips, and left his home in Denver several weeks since, stopping en route at various cities to visit with relatives. At Ogden Mr. Atcheson was taken ill, but proceeded on his journey to Oakland to visit at the home of a nephew previous to coming to Tropico.

At Oakland his physical condition became so alarming that word was sent to Mrs. Phillips to hasten to his bedside at once. Upon arriving in Oakland, it was deemed best to bring Mr. Atcheson to Los Angeles, and Mrs. Phillips returned with her father. Arriving in Los Angeles, Mr. Atcheson was taken to the Clara Barton hospital. The surgeons deemed it unwise to perform an operation, owing to the advanced age of Mr. Atcheson, who was 83 years of age, and the condition of the patient was rendered as comfortable as medical attention and the love and care of the patient's three daughters, Mrs. Phillips of Tropico, Mrs. Miller of Long Beach and Mrs. Georgia of San Diego, could make it; the few last hours of his life here were crowned with the sweetest of life's loving ministrations.

Mr. Atcheson was a 32d degree Mason and one of the oldest Masons in Denver, having been constituted a life member of one of the oldest Masonic lodges of not only Denver but of the West.

Sunday evening the body of Mr. Atcheson was taken to Denver, where the Masonic orders of that city will consign to mother earth all that remains of their brother. Thus ended in tears and sadness the happy trip planned by Mr. Atcheson to spend the winter in Tropico surrounded by his daughter and her family.

SEEING THE LIGHT.

Lankershim and the Laconic editor has finally decided that it is not for the best interests of that section to endorse the scheme of annexation to Los Angeles in order to get some of the aqueduct water. The following appeared editorially in the Laconic last week: "The Lankershim district is not prepared to become a part of the city of Los Angeles. Water would work wonders, but annexation would do nothing for the district. Water creates crops, which we are after, but annexation creates taxes, which we are not after. If it is necessary to annex to the city we want none of the Los Angeles aqueduct water. With few exceptions, all territory asking for water makes the same statement. Water will make the country prolific, but ranching on city land under city taxation is out of the question. Los Angeles is bonded to her limit, so let her fight it out to her own liking. Note the talk put up by the city officials to be found elsewhere in this issue. Nothing definite is given out. The attorney makes silly, childlike expressions as the 'City will always be fair.' No one knows what the next set of officials will do with us. The Laconic at this particular time is against annexation, but like all wise men, our ideas can be changed."—Burbank Review.

HEALTH OFFICER'S TALKS, NO. 12.

"You are just a newcomer here and don't know what we need."

So said an old-timer who didn't want the city to take over a municipal water supply. As a matter of fact this was the only argument he could produce against it.

Let us look at the subject squarely. There are a great many newcomers here. They know nothing of the schemes, plans, desires, jealousies, animosities or disappointments of some who have lived long in the land. They do not care about these things. They come, like the city of Tropico, buy their homes and stay here. Is it not reasonable to suppose such a "newcomer" when he has lived here for a year is just as honestly interested in the welfare of the city as he who has lived here longer? Is it not reasonable to suppose he is possessed of enough intelligence to study the conditions and come to a conclusion?

We "newcomers" have every respect and consideration for the opinions of those who have more fortunately than us lived here more years, but we also think of the present and for the future, with only such study of the past as applies to the actual problems of today.

We love Tropico, and in more or less the same way a mother decks out her pretty little baby, like to see our adopted home appear to the best advantage. The weeds cut, attractive stations built, roads improved, fire protection provided, schools the best ever, good water under local control, in short, any and everything the city should have. We will work with everybody to accomplish these ends. We have no axe to grind, no ill feelings, nothing but a desire to boost.

Let us all get together in that spirit.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE.

The Knox-Martin Tractor recently attracted considerable attention in Philadelphia, hauling an enormous boiler during the parade in connection with the motor vehicle exposition run under the auspices of one of the local newspapers.

The boiler weighed over fifteen tons, but the tractor walked away with it as readily as though it had been made of pasteboard. Near by in the same street through which the parade was passing a large string of horses toiled laboriously along carrying a much smaller burden, apparently with the greatest difficulty.

The object lesson drawn by the spectators between the tractor method and the horse outfit was a very impressive argument in favor of the former. Aside from the ease with which the tractor hauled its immense burden, the saving in space alone by using the tractor instead of horses made a vast difference in the ease with which the heavy load could be manipulated through the crowded city traffic. As long strings of teams are not infrequently resorted to in the large cities for hauling big loads such as the boiler shown in the illustration, it is readily apparent what a big saving in valuable space the tractor can effect during the rush hours particularly. Aside from these advantages the cost of moving heavy loads of this character by the tractor is very much less than by horses, and with the rapid increase in the use of all types of motor vehicles it would appear that the Knox Tractor has solved about the only remaining problem facing motor transportation, namely, the economical and easy hauling of large, heavy objects, such as safes, boilers and kindred objects which have long been the bugbear of truckmen.
